Here at The Killarney Park Hotel we pride ourselves on our Afternoon Tea.

This season's Afternoon Tea is inspired by Killarney House which is located around the corner from the hotel. Our Pastry Team have taken some of the popular inspirations from Killarney House and intertwined these into delicate & delicious Afternoon Tea Delights.

The present Killarney House was built by Valentine Browne in the mid-1720s. In 1952 the estate was inherited by Beatrice Grosvenor, a niece of Gerald Browne, the last Earl of Kenmare. By 1956 Mrs. Grosvenor sold a portion of the estate to a property development syndicate based in the United States of America. In 1959, John McShain, a successful building contractor from Philadelphia, bought the estate outright. The estate, which included Killarney House, Innisfallen Island and Ross Castle were generously donated to the Republic of Ireland by the McShain family.

Killarney House and Gardens which is only a stone throw from where you sit today has been carefully restored to its former glory and today you can enjoy a tour of the historic rooms and take in the beauty of the gardens.
